STOCK MARKET REVIEW

Profit Taking Caused Some Reaction and Irregular Closing.

The stock market yesterday in the early part of the session presented a mixed sentiment. Traders were inclined to better prices, but were open for sure profits; so there was some realizing which caused a reaction, and, aside from the specialties, the market presented an appearance of weakness.

There was a decided effort to break prices by bearish traders, but the buying, as has been shown lately during attempts of this kind, proved to have more vitality than the selling interests, and offerings were easily absorbed by a variety of large interests.

One of the issues which was particularly strong was Great Northern Ore. Its popularity was assisted by a well colored rumor that some special gains would be distributed to the certificate holders this fall.

Guggenheim Exploration, which had been in the background, came out strong and sold up. Bethlehem Steel made an advance, and was particularly strong and active.

There have been some statistical sharps figuring out the value of this security, and the information was circulated that at its present selling price Bethlehem Steel is cheap.

The same may be said of several other stocks; the only drawback to the bargain side of the contract is whether they can be sold at a profit. Canadian Pacific, which is always attended with encouraging news when it is actively bullish, sold at a new high record on prospects of valuable rights which traders were sure would soon be distributed.

In the Street there appeared to be an enlarging public interest. Commission houses exhibited a better attendance and orders were reported to be coming from a wider clientele by the Stock Exchange houses. The market had a spell of inactivity which extended into the afternoon, but the undertone was too strong for any vigorous display of bearish operations, and the market, like a ship at anchor, seemed to be riding easily, waiting for the period of moving to come.
